While only an elite few might one day get the chance to emulate their Olympic heroes in competitive sport, there are millions simply happy to enjoy the health benefits of riding a bike. A group of east London teenagers were among those streaming towards a gleaming. These machines were made for men to drive like stagecoaches, or designed to dig on their own, controlled by clockwork and ingenious guiding devices. Its layout was conceived by an enlightened cyclist called Eric Claxton. Not to be outdone by their Gallic counterparts, British engineers made improvement. search showed that cores of railbike patents had been issued during the late s and early s.
